

How Hansel got his name.

Phred Hollister - 25 September 2016

About 2005 I got my first Model A, a 1930 Murray Fordor.

Shortly after its arrival I noticed that the car had not yet been named. In my mind all cars should have a name that represents their personality.

Bonnie also noticed that having an extra car in the family herd sometimes required some extra jockeying of cars to get your own car out.

At one point of frustration, Bonnie commented, "That THING is leaving a trail of oil all down the driveway!"

In defense of that THING, I commented on how the trail of oil would make it easy for me to find my way home, just like Hansel and Gretel left bread crumbs along their way. Immediately, that THING was christened with the name of Gretel.

A few years later, I took advantage of the opportunity to purchase a '28 Phaeton. Of course that car had to be named Hansel.
